

5 Star Rated Tutor

Tom Marshall

M.Phil Anglo-Saxon, Norse and Celtic,
University of Cambridge

- Average rating of 5 stars
- 3+ years of tutoring experience
- Internationally employed
- Award-winning

"I was lucky to have excellent teachers when I was at school and university, and I'm passionate about using my abilities to pass on what I most love about my favourite subjects. One thing all my years studying and teaching has taught me is that the most important thing for any given student's lesson is that their teacher understands how this individual student learns. This is particularly the case with private tuition, where the individual needs of each student are paramount. No student is the same; no lesson should be the same. It is my goal to work with parents and students to craft specifically tailored tuition depending on each individual." – Tom

Subjects Taught:

- English Literature
- English Language
- English as a Foreign Language
- German
- History (to GCSE)
- French (to GCSE)
- Creative Writing
- General Studies

Educational Background:

(Masters) Anglo-Saxon, Norse and Celtic, St Catharine's College, University of Cambridge

(Undergrad) First Class Honours: German, the Queen's College, University of Oxford

A Levels: 4 A*s in English Literature, History, French, and German

12 GCSES: 11 A*s and 1A

Awards/Scholarships:

Claude Beddington Prize for Best Mark in Year, 2014; Honourable Mention, English Goethe Society's Goethe Essay Prize, 2016; Winner, Viking Society of Northern Research's Turville-Petre Prize, 2017.

Teaching Experience:

I have tutored students of differing ages, skillsets, and backgrounds in a variety of subjects, as far afield as Hungary, Germany, Dubai and Vietnam. I have received consistently excellent feedback and testimonials, including a high success rate in getting students the grades they needed to pass exams or the grades they needed to get into university.

Extra Information:

I have collaborated closely with German novelist and poet Ulrike Draesner on various works, including proof-reading, editing and translating essays, articles, poems, and chapters of forthcoming novels, making me uniquely qualified both for tutoring creative writing and translation classes. I have won several awards for my creative writing and can provide further details.

Top Tip:

"Learn how you learn: do you find it easiest to repeat information out loud, to write things down, to illustrate it, to craft tables or lists?"

Tom Marshall

Rates (gbp per hour):

Individual Tutor's Rates Made Available Upon Enquiry

Please see 'FAQ' page for guidance

Marking:

All Canis Major tutors offer marking at a rate of £15 per 1000 words with a turnaround of three days
£25 per 1000 words with a turnaround of 24 hours

For equation-heavy proofreading, such as past maths papers, please discuss rates with your tutor on a case-by-case basis.

Review:

"Tom has been really helpful with tutoring me not only for my a level French but also general studies. He caters the sessions well to my needs and constantly checks in to see if there's anything that we need to focus more or less on." – French/General Studies: A Level

"Excellent tutor, with firm understanding of course requirements and what students need to maximise their marks. Tom provided a series of well-structured and clear revision sessions, with helpful resources, many of which were adapted specifically for my daughter. Friendly and very encouraging, he has really boosted her confidence and made her feel ready for the exams. Would highly recommend." – German: A Level

"Tom is friendly and enthusiastic. He has a clear knowledge and passion for his subjects, and I have been really impressed at how he has adapted to guide me through new A Level syllabus. Would recommend!" – English Literature: A Level

"Tom is a very friendly tutor who is happy to work around an unpredictable schedule. I had great fun developing my speaking skills through informal conversations via Skype, and Tom was also happy to mark & discuss written work." – German, Goethe Institute Application.

"I reached out to Tom online for A level English Lit support for my daughter. Tom was instantly engaged and understood the learning goals, he plays a key role as my daughter is a GAP year student. I cannot thank you tom for his excellent teaching 'touch', more importantly his understanding of the real support required for success." – English Literature: A Level